Ridiculing the “tin foil hats:” Citizen responses to COVID-19 misinformation in the Danish facemask debate on Twitter

At the start of the coronavirus pandemic, the World Health Organization warned that an infodemic jeopardized pandemic-quelling efforts and encouraged social media platforms to retaliate against the spread of online misinformation...

Tweets spreading misinformation stories make consistent arguments (on their own skewed terms), but only 28% of those rejecting misinformation explicitly address false or misleading claims. Most tweets rejecting misinformation mock, ridicule, or stigmatize those spreading misinformation stories, often through irony or sarcasm...Our results suggest that rejection is largely aimed at the rejector's own audience, not the misinformation spreaders...In these tweets, misinformation spreaders were described as "idiots" and "wearers of tinfoil hats" or stigmatized as an "anti-facemask-faction."

Adv Exp Med Biol. 2018:

"Aluminum, as a known neurotoxicant, contributes to cognitive dysfunction and may contribute to Alzheimer's disease. The important reason is that aluminum can enter and be deposited in the brain...The redistribution of aluminum out of the brain is slow, so aluminum can be deposited in the brain for a long time."

Neurotoxicology. 2016 Jan:

"...aluminum exposure can result in excess inflammatory activity within the brain...Evidence is presented that reinforces the likelihood that aluminum is a factor speeding the rate of brain aging."

Curr Med Chem. 2011.

Aluminum is an experimentally demonstrated neurotoxin and the most commonly used vaccine adjuvant...the notion that aluminum in vaccines is safe appears to be widely accepted. Experimental research, however, clearly shows that aluminum adjuvants have a potential to induce serious immunological disorders in humans. In particular, aluminum in adjuvant form carries a risk for autoimmunity, long-term brain inflammation and associated neurological complications and may thus have profound and widespread adverse health consequences...

Weston A. Price:

In 2018, the authors of a study in Advances in Experimental Medicine and Biology wrote about aluminum as a known neurotoxicant, stating that it “contributes to cognitive dysfunction and may contribute to Alzheimer’s disease.” The study’s authors also pointed out that “Redistribution of aluminum out of the brain is slow, so aluminum can be deposited in the brain for a long time.”

NutritionFacts.org:

“The highest natural levels of aluminum are found in shellfish, but the highest level overall is in cheese. Why? Just like the poultry industry adds arsenic to chicken, the dairy industry adds aluminum to cheese, the #1 source of aluminum in the diet...”

...these results suggest food [CHEESE] contributes much more Al to systemic circulation, and potential Al body burden, than does drinking water...

Aluminum (Al) is a toxicant to the central nervous, skeletal and hematopoietic systems (Krewski et al., 2007).

Many showed a significantly higher odds ratio for dementia among study subjects living in areas where the drinking water had a higher Al concentration...

Concern about the safety of the addition of Al in foods was expressed long ago (Gies, 1911) and again recently...
