

And They Mocked Him – Mark 15:22-38

A few years ago, in Manila, Philippines, a devout Roman Catholic named "Mendoza" was "crucified." He had been fasting and praying for more than a week, constantly encouraged by his priest. On what is commonly called "Good Friday," he was stripped down to a loin-cloth, after which he lay upon a freshly painted white cross. Two men from his church tied his wrists to the arms of that clean, white, almost sterile cross. A third man tied his ankles to the post just above a foot-rest where his feet were propped. The men lifted the cross to an upright position with Mendoza still tied to it. Carefully they let it slowly slip into a perfectly prepared slot in a large piece of concrete. Some of Mendoza's relatives and friends were silently weeping, while hundreds of others looked on praying and expressing words of encouragement. There was a doctor standing by, just in case he was needed, but it was unlikely that things would be taken that far. There was no one there laughing at him, no one mocking him, no one spitting or throwing things. Besides a few photographers, Mendoza had nothing but support surrounding him. The sun was hot that April afternoon, and very quickly he man began to wilt under its gaze. In his weakening condition it didn't look like he would be up there more than an hour at most. Quickly his coaches threw in the towel on his behalf. When the ordeal was over, there was congratulations and praise for his devotion and bravery. Over the years this scene has been repeated hundreds of times around the Roman Catholic world. But not very often here in the United States. I don't wish to sound like I am making fun of Mr. Mendoza. I wish that the saints of God were half as dedicated and self-sacrificing as this man was. But the fact is: this self-crucifixion was not only harmful to his body, but it was even more so to his soul. Acts of devotion like this are usually presented to God in an effort to buy salvation from sin. But all the preparation and pain were for naught; they produced nothing spiritual. Salvation is by grace through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, not through any suffering we might endure in His name.

And besides, it was so unlike the Lord's crucifixion that it is hard to call it "crucifixion." Where was the blood, the nails and the soldiers with their armor and their spears? There were no thorns, and Mendoza's back hadn't been ripped to shreds with whips. Where was the afternoon darkness, the earthquake and sense of the absence of God? O, the God of Heaven was not in any of this, but His absence was different on the day Christ died. And where were the mocking people, laughing and spitting on the man? One of the few similarities between the two "crucifixions" was the gaggle of shameless priests.

I've entitled this message: "And They Mocked Him." The ground beneath Jesus' cross, stained with divine blood, is extremely holy. I know that I'm unworthy to tread here. "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Despite the holiness of Calvary, we need to visit from time to time. And despite its over-all sacred nature, not everything about it is holy.

This morning I would like you to meditate on the words of the priests as they mocked our Saviour. The word "mock" means to make fun of something in the way that silly children might behave. The night prior to the crucifixion the highest priests of Israel were behaving like mad-men. But at the cross they were acting like foolish children. It is interesting that every branch of the Jewish religious leadership was involved in this mocking. Verse 31 speaks about the chief priests – at this time they were all of the liberal Sadducees. But the scribes were, for the most part, very conservative Pharisees. The elders were people like Gamaliel, the respected long-time instructor of Israel.

Scripture says, "Mocking, they said among themselves....." These men were entertaining THEMSELVES and the people around them with their mocking. They were through with Christ; they had washed their hands of Him. So they laughed about Him and mocked Him and the things which He had taught them. When a gang of rowdy teenagers did the same thing to Elisha, God sent two bears to kill them. But when His own dear Son was mocked, He took it in utter silence. Is not this holy ground? Out of all the men of Israel, it should have been the priests who were most respectful at a place of execution. If they really thought Christ was but a mere man, then a mere man was about to go out into eternity. If they thought that He was a sinner, then He was going to soon face His Judge. They should have been quiet and sorrowful – and respectful, but instead they were the most disrespectful men in the whole audience. The things they muttered were basically true, but they were spoken negatively – they were denying them. The things that they were saying are things which I hold precious.

For example, they mocked the Lord as SAVIOUR.

They said, "He saved others; himself he cannot save." The word "save" refers to a deliverance. Depending on the context, it can mean different things. We use this word most often to refer to the sinner's deliverance from the guilt of his sins. But the Bible also uses it to describe deliverance from disease or dangerous situations. And certainly these people were not thinking about salvation from sin. Perhaps they had Jesus' many miracles in mind. There was that demon possessed man in the synagogue of Nazareth whom Jesus saved.

“The fame of (Christ) went out into every place of the country round about” – Luke 4:37. In Matthew 8:3 Jesus saved a leper and told him to report his cleansing to the priests. With these two events these priests definitely knew about him. There was paralytic man who was first saved from his sins, before being saved from his palsy. That miracle caused a real uproar in the synagogue office. Jesus performed miracle after miracle, saving probably hundreds of people from various afflictions. John says, “And there are also many other things which Jesus did, which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written.” These were probably the things the priests had in mind when they said, “He saved others.”

I have noticed that different commentaries differ on whether or not the priests really BELIEVED that Jesus actually saved anyone. As we read the black ink on the onion skin paper of our Bibles we can't hear tone of their voices. So some people think they were acknowledging the Lord's abilities over disease and disaster. But I agree with the majority who say that this was a part of their mockery. Those priests didn't believe that Jesus had really delivered anyone. They believed that it was all illusion – just smoke and mirrors. They believed that sometimes Jesus was working through the power of Beelzebub – Satan. When the Lord healed the man who had been born blind, these same priests cross-examined him again and again, trying to prove that this was an hoax designed to trick the gullible. These people did everything in their power to excuse the miraculous and deny the obvious. They were mocking when they said that Jesus had saved others.

And yet now they demand that Christ save Himself. That is, they were daring the Lord Jesus and taunting Him to work just one more miracle. It would take a mighty miracle for Jesus' hands to pull free from those well-practiced nails – the iron which had held other victims to other crosses. Could He have saved Himself? Without the tiniest doubt. But the question was not whether or not He COULD, the question was whether He WOULD. In the garden when they came to arrest Him, not only did he say that he could call ten thousand angels, but He also knocked the whole crowd to the ground – like mobile homes in a tornado. The Lord clearly proved that He could save Himself if He wanted to.

They mocked the Lord as Saviour, and they mocked Him as KING.

“If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross.” It was not uncommon for a crucified man to have the charges against him posted on his cross. And as we see in verse 26 this was done for Christ. Matthew tells us it was done at the order of Pilate. “And the superscription of his accusation was written over, ‘the King of the Jews.’” At first the priests argued about the wording. The implication of the statement was that Jesus really was the King of the Jews and the priests denied it. Those liars had said to governor, “We have no king but Caesar,” but actually they hated him. It is the nature of dishonest people to say or do anything to augment their case.

Something students today need to keep in mind, is what the term “king” generally implied to the Jews. John 1 describes the Lord's conversion with Nathaniel. Philip found Nathaniel and said, “We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets did write.” In other words, Philip said that the long-awaited Messiah had come. But Nathaniel was properly skeptical, until he actually met Jesus. The Lord then proved that he really was the Messiah, by revealing some things that only Nathaniel and God could have known. When Nathaniel eventually realized who this Man was, he said, “Rabbi, thou art the Son of GOD; thou art the KING of Israel.” As far as this devout Jew was concerned, the King of Israel was also the Messiah of Israel. And when the Lord Jesus was being interrogated by the priests, they asked Him whether or not He was the Christ, the Messiah, the Son of God, and eventually the Lord replied that He was. So when they took him to Pilate, they accused Him of claiming to be “King Jesus.” When the Lord returns to this earth in His ultimate glory, He shall rule over Israel as her Messiah, her anointed one, her King. It would be permissible for us to substitute “Messiah” or “Christ” for “King” in these verses. These priests were mocking the Kingship of the King – that He is the Messiah.

And we remember that He had already been mocked by the soldiers in this same regard. The Romans had dressed him in a scarlet robe and platted a thorny crown, giving him a reed for a scepter. They danced around him like children and bowed their knees before Him, saying, “Hail, King Jews.” Now those Jews were doing the same thing, but with a more vicious sneer in their voices. “If you are really the Messiah, come down from that cross and we will believe you.” I am convinced, based upon other scriptures, that if the Lord had somehow descended from the cross, they would NOT have believed. As a whole, they would have come up with some sort of explanation – some excuse NOT to believe. And then there is a sense in which the Lord did exactly what they demanded, and they still did not believe. Following the Lord's death that Wednesday afternoon, he was lovingly taken down from the cross and entombed.

Then 72 hours later, he came out of Joseph's tomb as much alive as He had ever been before. Sure, there was a three day delay between their demand and His resurrection, but in effect He did come off the cross. There were scars in his hands, in his feet, scalp and side, BUT he was alive. The Lord was undoubtedly alive after being undeniably dead. The nails didn't melt, nor did He pull those nails through his hands or feet, but He was alive. And how many of those mocking priests believed on Him when that evidence was made plain? Those men had no intention of believing that He was the Messiah no matter how much miraculous evidence there was.

Those men mocked at Him as the Saviour, as the King and even as a BELIEVER.

"He trusted in God" they said. Perhaps they folded their hands together in front of them, as in mock prayer, when they said this. Perhaps they used other gestures, glances, sneers and words. They were implying that the Lord Jesus only pretended to trust the Father in Heaven. Or perhaps they were saying that He was deluded and befuddled.

Those Jews displayed a characteristic of a faulty faith which is very common. It is a general idea that unless God blesses me right now, He's not worthy of my trust. But true submissive faith doesn't have to have an immediate answer. Godly faith is persistent despite any and all negative circumstances. Did the Son have any reason NOT to trust the Father? Had the Father ever let the Son down? It might be argued that since He was bearing the sins of God's elect that Christ really should have feared the Father. But I believe that despite those imputed sins, He was still the infinitely holy Son of God, with absolutely nothing to fear. And besides, the Lord knew how the last chapter of the book was going to be written. He, Himself, had prophesied that he would be entombed in the heart of the earth for three days. He knew that there would be a resurrection, an ascension and a complete glorification. His trust in the Father wasn't abated an ounce, despite the pain or the darkness of the sky. There was no reason to doubt the Father's will, the Father's love, or the Father's omnipotence, despite the circumstances of the moment.

Why do so many think that when the Lord permits them to be run through the milling machine, it must be because the Lord no longer loves them? Why is it that trouble whispers in our ear that God hates us? As I said last Wednesday, "All things work together for good to them that love Him, to them who are the called according to his purpose." And remember that our trials and problems are all minor compared to what the Lord endured. Yet He believed God and continued to trust in His purpose and power.

Those priests also mocked Him as the SON OF GOD.

"Let him deliver him now, if he will have him, for he said, I am the Son of God." One of the words used to describe the taunting these people were throwing in Jesus' face was "revile." Verse 32 – "Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the cross, that we may see and believe. And they that were crucified with him REVILED him." The English dictionary defines the word – "to criticize in an abusive or angrily insulting manner." The Greek word is "blas-fay-meh" or "blasphemy." Literally, it means to "speak evil of someone." But in its true context, it was the Jews who were blaspheming by claiming the Saviour had been blaspheming God. They said that His blasphemy was that He claimed to be the Son of God. The priests were sure that this was the highest heresy, and that this was would hang Him. "Let God save him, if he will have him – despite calling himself God's own Son." But of course, Jesus Christ IS the eternal Son of God, the Second Person of the Trinity.

There are multitudes of people today who refuse to accept the truth of the deity of Christ. They deny that He is the Son of God, BUT they will still permit him to be a good man. But if Christ was a good man, then he must have been the Son of God as well, because that is what He said. It is impossible in Jesus' case to have one without the other. The Jews were quite correct in saying that He claimed to be the Son of God. If Jesus of Nazareth claimed to be the Son of God without that being true, then Jesus was a liar and therefore NOT a good man. And then obviously, if he was the Son of God, there could have been no gooder man than He.

Everything about which they mocked Christ was ABSOLUTELY TRUE

He is the Saviour, He is the Messiah, He did trust the Father, and He is the Son of God. And all that they wanted Christ to do that awful afternoon, He could have done. But it would have been contrary to everything that Jesus is and what He came to accomplish. He could not come down from the cross because He was completing the salvation of His people. If he disobeyed the will of the Father, then he would never sit upon the throne of His father David.

It is because he did not come down that the saints of God believe on Him. It is because He died for our sins that we love Him and lean upon Him. And it is because those priests rejected and hated Christ that they are in Hell today.

THEIR futures are established, but the question remains – “Where will YOU spend eternity?” Are there any of these five points of the priests to which you do not agree? Do you say, Jesus is not the Saviour; He is not the King; He is not the Son of God? Oh, you agree with them all? Good for you, that brings you up to the level of a demon – an angel of Satan. “The devils also believe” such things.

The question is: do you love and trust this One whom the Jewish priests hated and denied? Is your faith in Jesus Christ, as the Saviour and the sacrifice your sins require? Repent and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved.
